Shuttle Called Fit to Return

Inspection shows Discovery not damaged by falling foam

SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON | Space shuttle Discovery escaped any serious damage from the potentially deadly piece of foam that broke off from the fuel tank during liftoff and looks safe to fly home in a week, NASA said Thursday.

The welcome news came after Mission Control received stunningly detailed photographs of Discovery taken by the crew aboard the international space station. The shuttle executed an unprecedented backflip to bare its belly to the cameras before docking with the space station.

NASA wanted to make sure Discovery did not suffer the kind of mortal wound that brought down Columbia in 2003.

NASA Administrator Michael Griffin said on ABC: "Everything that we see at this point says that the orbiter is in fact a clean bird."

On Wednesday, NASA suspended all further shuttle flights after learning that a big piece of foam insulation weighing just short of a pound came flying off Discovery's external fuel tank in an alarming repeat of the problem that doomed Columbia.

All that remains before NASA can clear Discovery for landing is an inspection, most likely on Friday, by a new laser-tipped boom that will provide 3-D views of scraped thermal tiles on the shuttle's belly.

The 100-foot crane will determine the depth of what looks to be surface-coating damage, Shannon said. MARCIA DUNN (AP)

A Nashua, N.H., store cashier is charged with helping apparently random people steal about $5,000 in clothing from the store. Police have charged Shayna McDonald, 19, of Nashua, with theft. They said that while she worked as a cashier at the A.G. Wright department store, she allowed customers to leave with goods after charging them a fraction of the cost. Lt. Andrew Lavoie said that McDonald and the customers who got the price breaks apparently didn't know each other. He said the word was out on the street that she gave breaks on clothing and she apparently got nothing in return. (AP)

PARTIES

The Roof, Leaky Roof, Leaky Roof Is On Fire

New Zealand's government wants to know how taxpayer money spent on parties was supposed to help fix leaky roofs, the Dominion Post reported. Weathertight Homes Resolution Services was being paid by the government to do repairs on homes with roof troubles, but billed the government for flying its staff between Auckland and Wellington for four themed parties during the past two years. One, dubbed "Pacific Island Extravaganza," was held June 17 and featured dancing girls and kava drinking; it cost the government $4,000. "It is not clear how it would have contributed to the resolution of leaky homes," deputy prime minister Michael Cullen said. (EXPRESS)

The maker of Snickers is one-upping a spoonful of sugar to help the medicine go down. The company is working with drug companies to develop the medicines. But not all experts think the idea is a good one. "This is about selling chocolate," said Marion Nestle, a New York University professor of nutrition. "Mars is only doing this because it wants people to eat more and more M&Ms." (EXPRESS)

Experts Mull Ending Shuttle Program

Some say vehicle is too old, risky for use; NASA leaders disagree

HOUSTON | Some critics are casting the space shuttle's latest setbacks as evidence it may be too costly and too risky in the twilight of its life, but NASA and its backers are steeling themselves against any effort to retire it early.

"Maybe it's time to consider that this is the last straw, because the shuttle is enormously expensive. It's a risky vehicle. It's an old technology," said Louis Friedman, who directs the prominent space interest group known as The Planetary Society.

"The shuttle is an amazing vehicle, and it can do things in space that no other asset ... can do," countered NASA flight operations manager John Shannon. "No one is folding their tents."

NASA managers who sent the shuttle back into space this week discovered it is still shedding big pieces of foam insulation on launch, and they suspended future flights. One chunk captured on camera was almost as big as the one that banged into the heat shield of Columbia's wing during the previous shuttle launch 2 1/2 years ago, dooming the craft and its seven astronauts.

PAST ITS PRIME? Some experts say shuttles like Discovery, seen here from the International Space Station on Thursday, should be replaced by new technology. Discovery crew performed a backflip to assess potential damage to the shuttle's heat shield.

Frustrated NASA leaders, who have labored since 2003 to limit potential damage to the shuttle's thermal covering, were forced to ground the fleet indefinitely to study more changes. The agency has already poured $1.4 billion into trying to make the shuttle fleet safer.

As it is, the almost 25-year-old shuttle program is supposed to end around 2010. NASA is hurrying to develop a new craft capable of going back to the moon and perhaps beyond, but that will probably take years. This same craft would go to the space station, too.

House Approves Energy Measure

Massive bill gives much of its $14.5B tax breaks to energy companies

WASHINGTON | The House by a wide margin approved a mammoth energy plan for the nation Thursday that sends billions of dollars in tax breaks and subsidies to energy companies, but is expected to do little to reduce U.S. oil consumption or dampen high energy prices.

"It is not a perfect bill," said Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich. But he called it "a solid beginning" to diversifying future energy sources, improving the nation's aging electricity grid and fostering more energy conservation.

The bill was approved 275-156. Congress now awaits action by the Senate, probably on Friday.

The 1,725-page bill, the product of weeks of compromise between widely different versions approved by the two chambers earlier this year, would provide $14.5 billion in energy tax breaks, much of it to traditional energy companies. It also provides money for promoting renewable energy sources, new energy technologies and measures to revital-

Scandal, Suicide in Miami

Ex-official's death spotlights seriousness of federal indictments

MIAMI | The federal corruption charges brought against former City Commissioner Arthur E. Teele Jr. two weeks before his suicide carried the possibility of a long prison stretch and dim prospects for acquittal, government officials and defense lawyers said Thursday.

Teele, 59, shot himself in the head Wednesday in the lobby of The Miami Herald after asking to speak with columnist Jim Defede. An autopsy was being performed that would include checks for the presence of drugs or alcohol, with results likely in several weeks, police said.

The 26-count grand jury indictment announced July 14 made Teele

Arthur Teele sits in a Miami court in March, where he was eventually convicted of threatening a police officer.

one of more than 1,000 government officials charged with wrongdoing each year by federal prosecutors and the FBI, who rank corruption investigations below only terrorism, espionage and computer-related crime in terms of importance.

Although Teele was also charged with corruption by state prosecutors, defense lawyers say it was the federal case — with a possible prison term of well over 100 years — that probably made it clear to Teele his days as a free man were numbered.

Teele was accused along with an associate in the federal indictment of accepting more than $59,000 in a scheme to land a $20 million airport electrical construction contract for a company that did not qualify as required for state or federal small business preferences. He had pleaded not guilty. CURT ANDERSON (AP)

IRA Declares End to Armed Activity

Dramatic statement is fresh attempt at peace for Northern Ireland

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND | The Irish Republican Army renounced the use of violence against British rule Thursday and said it will disarm — a dramatic end to the IRA's 35-year threat to Northern Ireland and a boost toward peace-making.

British Prime Minister Tony Blair praised what he called “a step of unparalleled magnitude,” and leaders in Ireland and the United States also heralded the announcement as historic.

But some analysts and politicians warned that the outlawed IRA — which pointedly will not disband — left wiggle room for its members to keep some weapons and control a criminal empire in a territory whose Roman Catholic and Protestant communities remain deeply divided.

Sinn Fein party leader Gerry Adams, who reportedly quit the IRA's seven-man command in May after three decades, said the IRA was effectively ending its self-declared war to force Northern Ireland out of the United Kingdom.

“There is a time to resist, to stand up and to confront the enemy by arms if necessary,” Adams said. “In other words, unfortunately, there is a time for war. There is also a time to engage, to reach out, to put the war behind us all. ... This is that time.” SHAWN POGATCHNIK (AP)

STARTING ANEW: Gerry Adams, the head of Sinn Fein, a political party allied with the IRA, speaks to the media in Dublin about the dramatic disarmament pledge.

A NEW PEACE PACT

Thursday's statement from the IRA contained new commitments — but left other issues unclear:

● WAR OVER? The IRA “formally ordered an end to the armed campaign.” The IRA says its bomb-and-bullet campaign to abolish Northern Ireland as a part of the United Kingdom — which was launched in 1970 and claimed 1,800 lives — has been abandoned and will not resume. The new words come close to a long-held British demand for the IRA to say, “The war is over.”

● DISARMAMENT: This means the IRA will reopen contact with the retired Canadian general who oversaw three previous partial acts of IRA disarmament. But it doesn't mean the IRA has committed itself to total disarmament; units may be told to dump some of their weapons but retain others. (AP)

Brazilians Grieve For Man Shot 8 Times in London

GONZAGA, BRAZIL | The flag-draped casket bearing the body of Jean Charles de Menezes, the Brazilian man shot dead by British police after being mistaken for a terrorist in London, arrived Thursday in his hometown.

The plain wooden coffin was taken to the Sao Sebastiao Church, where a wake will be held for Menezes before his funeral Friday, a city hall official said.

Meanwhile, the leader of the Roman Catholic Church in England and Wales will cut short a pilgrimage abroad to attend a Mass in London's Westminster Cathedral on behalf of Menezes to coincide with his funeral in Brazil. (AP)

British Police 'Race' to Find Bombers

LONDON | British anti-terrorist officers arrested nine men in dawn raids Thursday in connection with the botched July 21 bomb attacks on London's transit system as police warned of “a race against time” to hunt down the bombers.

With three of the suspected attackers still at large, Britain has launched its biggest police operation since World War II, flooding the city with thousands of officers to reassure the public while also warning of more possible attacks.

“There are many thousands of police officers trying to ensure the safety of Londoners,” said Metropolitan Police Commissioner

Sir Ian Blair — three weeks to the day after the July 7 attacks that killed 56 people, including four suicide bombers.

“It does remain possible that those at large will strike again,” he added. “It does also remain possible that there are other cells who are capable and intent on striking again.”

Scotland Yard said the nine men were arrested under the Terrorism Act at two properties in the neighborhood of Tooting, south London, early Thursday. They were being held in a central London police station.

The arrests bring to 20 the number of people police have in custody, including one of the alleged bombers. ED JOHNSON (AP)

North Korean Nuclear Talks Yield New Dialogue

BEIJING | The top U.S. envoy held his longest meeting yet Thursday with his North Korean counterpart and said he hoped they would soon be able to draft a joint document that would signal some progress in talks aimed at curbing the North's nuclear ambitions.

Such a document of “agreed principles” would indicate a new level of dialogue between the two countries — and come amid new promises for progress in the negotiations, which on Friday will become the longest round of nuclear talks between the U.S. and North Korea in more than a decade.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Christopher Hill and others have stressed that they do not expect any breakthroughs. “We have a long way to go still,” he said.

Thursday's bilateral meeting — held as part of six-nation talks — was “maybe the first time both sides talked so deeply, so concretely and for such a long time,” said Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander Alexeyev, the Russian envoy.

Hill said he hoped to start drafting a results statement “in the next 24 hours” — a possible indication that negotiations were inching forward. BO-MI LIM (AP)

Mubarak To Seek 5th Term

Egyptian leader poised to win first presidential race open to opponents

SHIBIN EL-KOM, EGYPT | Days after Egypt's deadliest terror attack, President Hosni Mubarak made the long expected announcement Thursday that he will run for re-election, promising new anti-terror laws and calling for a summit of Arab leaders in battered Sharm el-Sheik.

Mubarak, a key U.S. ally, will face an election opponent in the September vote for the first time in a quarter century in office. He made a splashy start to his campaign with a televised address surrounded by supporters.

The call for an Arab summit next week in Sharm el-Sheik aimed to signal a strong hand in the face of bombings many Egyptians fear mean a new wave of violence and damage to an ailing economy.

Mubarak is expected to easily win a fifth six-year term in the poll, which comes after years of referendums in which he was the only candidate. This year he ordered the constitution amended to allow opponents in the presidential race for the first time in Egypt's modern history, touting it as a major reform.

SEARCH FOR VICTIMS: Indian paramilitary troops and rescue workers search for bodies of people killed in a landslide in Bombay on Thursday following record monsoon rains. Some areas were deluged with up to 37 inches of rain in a single day.

India's Monsoon Rains Kill Over 500

BOMBAY, INDIA | Rescuers pulled bodies from rivers of mud in and around flood-ravaged Bombay Thursday as they searched for survivors of record-breaking monsoon rains that killed at least 513 people this week.

Officials said 273 people have died in Bombay since Tuesday when the cosmopolitan city that is home to India's financial and movie industries was hit by an unprecedented deluge of up to 37.1 inches of rain in some areas, the highest recorded one-day total in India's history. Much of it came over a few evening hours.

A government-ordered holiday kept workers at home Thursday as normally bustling Bombay struggled to get back on track. The Bombay Stock Exchange did not open, and many banks and other financial institutions remained shut. In the northern Bombay suburb of Saki Naka, relief workers and survivors searched the ruins of a shantytown crushed when a water-soaked hill collapsed on top of it. While the complete toll was unclear, at least 110 people were killed, and more than 45 others were missing and presumed dead.

"It was terrible to pull out little babies from under boulders and mud," said firefighter S. Shinde. "The very young and the old just didn't make it."

British to Inspect Car in Diana's '97 Fatal Paris Crash

LONDON | The car in which Princess Diana died in a Paris crash eight years ago has been sent to London for forensic examination, police said Thursday.

London's Metropolitan Police said the wrecked Mercedes was shipped from Paris to London on Wednesday for the latest stage of investigation into Diana's death.

Diana, her companion Dodi

Fayed and their driver Henri Paul died Aug. 31, 1997 when the car crashed in a Paris underpass.

Forensic experts will be able to examine the car for clues about what happened in the crash. They will be using the latest technology to build a computer model of the crash scene, the police said.

An official British inquest into the accident was opened last January, but adjourned to allow a police probe. (AP)

Referendum Vote May Open Door for Multiparty Politics

Ugandans voted Thursday on whether to allow a multiparty system, which was banned for 19 years by a president who argued that political parties were tribally based and responsible for years of civil war. The referendum was the first step in reforming the East African country's constitution, which forbids political parties from campaigning in elections. (AP)

Hamas Holds Mass Wedding In Effort to Show Solidarity

You've seen Hamas, the violent Islamic group. Now meet Hamas, the wedding planner. Some 60,000 people gathered in the Nablus soccer stadium Thursday to watch 226 couples being married according to Islamic tradition, in a mass wedding organized by Hamas. Organizers said the ceremony was an attempt to show a different side of the organization, which has carried out dozens of suicide bombings in Israel. It was also a show of strength for the group, which is contesting Palestinian parliamentary elections for the first time. (AP)

May Stores Will Change to Macy's

Retail names such as Hecht's will disappear in pending takeover

CINCINNATI | The number of Macy's stores nationwide will rise to some 730 while retail shopping names such as Famous-Barr, Filene's, Hecht's and Kaufmann's will disappear next year under plans outlined Thursday by Federated Department Stores Inc. for its pending takeover of May Department Stores Co.

Besides converting some 330 May stores to Macy's, Federated plans to sell off 68 stores where the two companies have duplicate locations. The changes announced Thursday will eliminate all May nameplates except Lord & Taylor and Marshall Field's.

The pending $11 billion takeover would combine companies with a total $30 billion in annual sales.

Many May stores will convert to the Macy's name after the holiday season.

In a statement, Terry J. Lundgren, Federated's chief executive, repeated an earlier pledge not to eliminate any jobs before next March 1. All May stores will operate under their existing nameplates through this year's holiday shopping season. (AP)

DaimlerChrysler Chief to Step Down

FRANKFURT, GERMANY | DaimlerChrysler CEO Juergen Schrempp, the onetime apprentice mechanic who engineered the controversial marriage of Daimler-Benz to Chrysler, announced Thursday that he will step down at the end of the year.

Dieter Zetsche, who led the resurgence of the U.S.-based Chrysler Group, will take over the world's fifth-largest automaker.

Schrempp designed the 1998 merger of Germany's Daimler-Benz and U.S.-based Chrysler Corp. The merged company has struggled, first with heavy losses at the Chrysler division and now with weak earnings at its former cash cow, Mercedes. (AP)

Support Building For Metro Plan

Infusion of needed federal funds tied to regional cooperation

WASHINGTON | Members of Congress from around the region said Thursday that Metro is critical to the federal government and should receive up to $1.5 billion a year in federal funds.

Republicans and Democrats joined in announcing bipartisan support for a bill that would provide the cash-strapped transit agency with continuing federal cash, if local jurisdictions establish a dedicated funding source for the bus and rail system.

"The Washington Metro system is a national asset," said Thomas Davis III, R-Va., whose funding proposal would grant the General Services Administration authority to appoint a representative on the Metro Board. Federal employees make up 40 percent of the Metro system's rush-hour ridership.

"They've clearly said, 'Here's money on the table, if you want it, you have to make it happen.' This changes the dynamic and I welcome that," board chairman Dana Kauffman said. He and other board members have repeatedly faced resistance from local jurisdictions when seeking a consensus on a dedicated funding source.

Uncertainty about general revenues in the District, four counties, three cities and two states that make up the Metro compact have made planning, expansion and maintenance difficult for the transit agency.

"The breakdown of this system, one day, would be billions of dollars that this government would never recover," said Del. Eleanor Holmes Norton, D-D.C. Norton said that she'll support the plan, despite provisions that would limit development or the sale of land near certain Metro stations. DERRILL HOLLY (AP)

Mayor, Hollywood Flirt During Sidewalk Cameo

WASHINGTON | He's ready for his close-up, Mr. DeMille.

The globetrotting mayor of the nation's capital had a bit of Hollywood on his own doorstep Thursday. Anthony A. Williams stood in front of the swank, upscale Mayflower Hotel on Connecticut Avenue, where he filmed a cameo for the new movie "The Sentinel."

Williams — playing himself — walks into the hotel and shakes hands with a Secret Service agent played by a more recognizable marquee name, Michael Douglas.

"It took several takes," Williams' spokesman Erik Linden said of the scene which takes up 30 seconds of celluloid. Williams was on the busy downtown set for about 90 minutes Thursday morning.

"I have to say that the mayor looked very good," Linden added.

Based on the novel of the same name by former Secret Service agent Gerald Petievich, "The Sentinel" stars Douglas as an agent who is having an affair with the president's wife, played by Kim Basinger.

Ramsey sets out to prove he's the Redskins' QB of the future

REDSKINS | The Washington Redskins' offense enters the 2005 training camp on Sunday with fresh faces, a new strategy and, as a result, plenty of uncertainty. Irresolution is rare in any team run by coach Joe Gibbs, but as he moves to adapt his game plan of old with a newer NFL, he's brought in players of diverse talents to allow for adjustments both before and during the season.

"We were at the bottom of the league on offense," Gibbs told the Associated Press. "And, as much as anybody, I'm responsible for that."

Of course, it wouldn't be Redskins training camp without a little controversy. Most notably, the team has set up a high-profile competition between 2002 quarterback-of-the-future Patrick Ramsey and 2005 quarterback-of-the-future Jason Campbell. In the middle is veteran Mark Brunell, Gibbs' hand-picked quarterback who was a bust last season.

Ramsey's NFL experience was unusual from the start. He got his introduction riding a horse on the Steve Spurrier QB merry-go-round. Then, during a promising second season as the undisputed starter, he missed the last five games of the season due to a foot injury, before being benched last year for Brunell.

Given a second chance after Brunell proved unable to handle QB duties, Ramsey failed to make a big impression, throwing more interceptions than touchdowns and showing a slight drop-off from his 2003 performance. Apparently Gibbs didn't like what he saw, taking the as-of-yet-unsigned Jason Campbell in the first round of this year's draft.

"I don't think Patrick was very relaxed," Gibbs said in a Washington Post interview.

Ramsey, who was also a first-round pick, has yet to have a full season all to himself. While Gibbs has named Ramsey the starter for this season, drafting Campbell shows he may not think Ramsey is the right quarterback for his system.

Training camp should reveal whether team officials think Ramsey can be relied on for the entire season. If he has a strong camp, he could delay what looks to be a messy quarterback controversy; if Ramsey doesn't stand out, he'll probably still start — but just until the Redskins find the right time to get Campbell some experience.

"Patrick's been up here for a while now. ... I would say that he needs to take this thing and go with it now," Gibbs told the Post. CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

Patrick Ramsey's the starter but has yet to start a full season in three up-and-down years in Washington.

A Warm-Up Act

Legg Mason officials eye more growth as Agassi, Roddick return

TENNIS | The blazing heat of the past few weeks has chosen a very good time to subside for a while.

The Legg Mason Tennis Classic comes to town next week, and the (relatively) cooler temperatures will make it a lot easier for fans and players alike to enjoy the ATP Tour's annual trip to D.C.

This year's field will feature the usual cast of big names such as five-time Legg Mason champ Andre Agassi, 2003 champion Tim Henman and Andy Roddick — the 2001 winner whose first hardcourt professional victory came at Legg Mason.

But the stakes will be higher than in previous years because the tournament is part of the new U.S. Open series, which awards points and money to the players who do best over the course of the American summer hardcourt schedule.

Jeff Newman, the Legg Mason Tennis Classic's director, said that the United States Tennis Association "has really done a great job on making a focus on the summer season, to raise the profile not only in the markets that the tennis is in but among the players as well."

This year's edition of Legg Mason will also feature a USTA Pro Circuit

After missing Wimbledon with an injury, Andre Agassi returned to action at this week's Mercedes Benz Cup in Los Angeles. Next week, he will be in Washington.

women's tournament. While it might not feature the big names of the WTA Tour, Newman said that having a lower-level women's event can be a stepping stone to bigger things.

"That's our hope," he said. "We've brought the Washington area a great men's event since 1969 and we thought it was time to try to incorporate a women's tournament to have the full product and give fans a better experience."

JONATHAN TANNENWALD

WHO'S COMING TO DINNER?

Andre Agassi is just one of many stars who will be in D.C. for the Legg Mason. Take a look:

- Andy Roddick finished No. 2 in the world last year. In 2001, he became the youngest player to win the Legg Mason at 18.
- James Blake won the tournament in 2002, and the American was No. 76 last year in the ATP.
- No. 6 last year, Britain's Tim Henman was the 2003 champ.

Gibbs Looks For Old Magic

THE JOE GIBBS Redskins fans remember was known for making adjustments at halftime of each game that usually resulted in wins.

Perhaps that's what made last year's listless team so disappointing. Quarterbacks changed, but the offense didn't.

The result was a 6-10 record following an offseason full of expectation that Gibbs' second coming would be the cure-all for a team that's made the playoffs once since he left.

Now Gibbs can surprise people again. He's got something to prove — and not just to himself.

There's no such delusion this year. Predictions are tempered, with most attention on whether Sean Taylor will be serving jail time or not.

Deep down, that's probably the way the Hall of Fame coach likes it.

Gone, temporarily, is the genius label, replaced by questions whether the game has passed him by.

Now Gibbs can surprise people again. He's got something to prove — and not just to himself.

The master of adjustments had six months to think of a way to create offense. We already know the shotgun will be added, but what else does Gibbs have up his sleeve?

The answers will slowly creep out at training camp starting Sunday.

Surely, the offense will be better this year. It can't be any worse.

Just how good it will be is up for debate until Sept. 12, opening day.

Maybe it's hope, maybe it's just fond memories, but betting against Gibbs a second straight year seems foolish.

Just pretend it's the second half of his comeback, and we are just waiting for a pleasant surprise.

Brown Takes Long Way Home

N.Y. native hopes his last coaching job will be with the Knicks

NBA | Last stop: Madison Square Garden.

That's the way it was for Larry Brown when was a youngster taking the subway to Knicks games, and that's the way he hopes it will be in his newest job.

Brown was formally introduced Thursday as the new head coach of the New York Knicks, the team he grew up cheering for and the franchise he has helped made significant again.

"I think I say that everywhere I've been," Brown said with a laugh. "I know this will be my last stop. Basketball started for me in this city, and I want to be here when it's finally time for me to stop."

During his introductory news conference, Brown's wife and children sat in the front row near Herb Williams, who will join Brown's staff as an assistant coach and who Brown said would run the team in the event his health problems force him to miss any time.

Brown will get a chance to coach the Knicks, who he cheered for as a child.

Nats' Slide Continues

Braves accuse Guillen of dirty slide following their 3-game sweep

NATIONALS | The Atlanta Braves finished their sweep of the Washington Nationals, but the rivalry between the top teams in the NL East may be just getting started.

Rookie Jeff Francoeur homered twice, and the Braves beat the Nationals 5-4 Thursday in a game featuring a play that angered Atlanta star Chipper Jones.

Upset after being spiked high on his leg by Washington's Jose Guillen in the sixth inning, Jones accused Guillen of "a dirty play" and threatened retaliation when the teams play again.

The Braves opened a three-game lead over the Nationals in the division after they were tied entering the three-game series.

The Nationals were trying to rally from an early 4-0 deficit in the sixth when Guillen's single drove in Jose Vidro. Guillen moved to second on a single by Nick Johnson but was thrown out at third when catcher Brian McCann fielded a bunt and threw to Jones.

As Jones was awaiting the throw from McCann, he had his back to Guillen, who slid with his cleats high, tearing Jones' pants. Jones said he initially did not know he had been spiked.

He stayed in the game and said he had a minor cut on his leg.

Guillen said he was just trying to prevent a double play and didn't think he did anything wrong.

"Wait until next time and I'll show you what a dirty play is," Guillen said when told of Jones' comments.

The teams meet in a four-game series in Atlanta Aug. 29-Sept. 1.

Standings through July 27 games

Once Again, Nats Game Is Off the Air

TELEVISION | Nationals fans hoping to catch a rare glimpse of the team on television received a rude surprise Thursday when the final game of Washington's series against Atlanta was not aired on Comcast even though TBS broadcast the game nationally.

TBS initiated the blackout as part of its contract with Major League Baseball, which calls for the cable network — and ESPN — to "protect the distribution rights of the home team," according to Mike Ortman, the vice president of programming for Comcast's Atlantic division.

And because Comcast has yet to reach a deal with the Mid-Atlantic Sports Network to show Nationals games not already aired on UPN20 or WTTG-5, the game was not shown locally on the cable giant even though the rest of the country could see it.

Only ESPN's Sunday night baseball has exclusive rights to be shown in a local market, Ortman said.

D.C. United Sold To Local Group

New owners seek to build a soccer stadium in the District by '08

UNITED | Hours before D.C. United played Chelsea in last night's highly anticipated exhibition at cavernous, suburban FedEx Field, the MLS champions announced the club's sale to a local investment group with designs on building a soccer-specific stadium in the District within the next few years.

United President and CEO Kevin Payne — along with Tim Leiweke of Anschutz Entertainment Group, which still owns four of 12 MLS teams — said yesterday that local businessmen Willi Lauterbach and Tim Kissler are the leaders of a group that has paid a record price for an MLS team. The terms were not revealed, but Leiweke said "If not for the depth and commitment made toward a soccer-specific stadium we would not have made this deal."

Payne will continue to run the club after the new owners take control next year. He said the parties were introduced to each other by the D.C. Sports and Entertainment Commission during discussions about a new stadium — Lauterbach and Kissler's Global Sports and Entertainment are involved in other stadium projects. Payne said he hoped a new facility, likely at Poplar Point on the Anacostia River, would be ready in 2008.

"I think that soccer is going forward in a strong way and we'd like to be a part of it," Lauterbach said following the news conference.

'Sky High' may be derivative, but too sweet to grouse at

FILM | No one makes movies about teen angst the way John Hughes used to make them. Even Hughes doesn't make movies about teen angst the way he used to make them.

But "Sky High" captures the humor and heartache lurking in the high-school halls with a style that should spark memories in children of the '80s while also appealing to kids who weren't even born by the time the decade came to a close.

The idea isn't exactly original, and neither is the fact that the students who attend Sky High — the geeks and the popular kids, the jocks and the hippies and the obligatory misunderstood rebel — are there to hone their superpowers.

But director Mike Mitchell

JUST SUPER: Parents Jetstream and Commander worry about their powerless son.

keeps things fresh with the help of an eclectic, likable cast that includes Kurt Russell, Lynda Carter, Cloris Leachman and Dave Foley.

The kids are also especially well-cast, notably Michael Angarano as

Will Stronghold, only son of the world's two most powerful superheroes, who's entering Sky High as a freshman with no apparent powers of his own; Mary Elizabeth Winstead as Gwen Grayson, the beautiful and persuasive student body president; and Danielle Panabaker as Layla, Will's childhood best friend who has a secret crush on him.

Will has been under intense pressure to succeed from his father (Russell) and mother (Kelly Preston) — better known as Commander and Jetstream. His classmates are an amusingly motley group: nerdy Ethan (Dee Jay Daniels), who turns into a puddle; purple-haired goth chick Magenta (Kelly Vitz), who can only transform herself into a purple-haired guinea pig; and cocky Zach (Nicholas Braun), who insists he can glow.

Eventually, the bullies get their comeuppance, the nerds have their day, and young love flourishes. All of this takes place at that teen-movie staple, The Big Dance. But "Sky High" is so funny and sweet and observant, you won't mind that the steps feel familiar.

My friends and I want to go dancing on Saturday night. Are there any places that offer salsa lessons followed by dancing?

Cecilia's is very cool. The crowd is almost entirely Latino, the bands and DJs are top-notch. There are three sets of classes every Friday night; it's $10, and includes dancing the rest of the night away to DJs and La Orquesta La Romana.

2619 Columbia Pike; Arlington, 703-685-0790.

La Orquesta Romana, one of the area's hottest salsa bands, plays Cecilia's.

Is there anyplace in the area where you can brew your own beer?

Shenandoah Brewing Company! Making the beer is a lot of fun, especially rolling the barrels all over the floor to "agitate" the mixture. It's fun for anyone who likes beer and/or chemistry projects.

652 S. Pickett St. Alexandria; 703-823-9508.

I'm looking for bars with the best jukeboxes. Any suggestions?

If you like oddball and retro juke, check out JV's (classic country and honky-tonk) or the Quarry House Tavern (classic rock and '70s outlaw country).

JV's, 6666 Arlington Blvd., Falls Church; 703-241-9504. Quarry House, 8401 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring; 301-587-9406.

A New Dog's Stale Tricks

'Must Love Dogs' has a fancy coat, but it's just a chick-flick mutt

FILM | All the hackneyed chick-flick conventions are present in sitcom vet Gary David Goldberg's "Must Love Dogs" starring Diane Lane.

There's the meddling but well-intentioned friends and relatives, the obligatory montage of bad first dates, the guy who seems like Mr. Right (Dermot Mulroney), the real Mr. Right (John Cusack), and the misunderstandings and obstacles that keep our heroine from him.

You know it's bad when half the cast "spontaneously" bursts into song — a cringe-inducing rendition of "The Partridge Family" theme — in a trailer, no less.

Lane's character, preschool teacher Sarah Nolan, has been divorced for several months. The members of her large, wisecracking, Irish-Catholic family conspire to find her a man.

Her sisters Carol (Elizabeth Perkins) and Christine (Ali Hillis), take the liberty of posting Sarah's puffed-up profile on an Internet dating service. (Not that she needs the puffery. She's good-natured. She loves kids. There seems to be nothing wrong with her — though she has so few discernible character traits, it's hard to tell. Plus, she looks like Diane Lane.)

PUPPY LOVE: The road to romance takes no new paths for the recently divorced Sarah (Diane Lane) and sentimental Jake (John Cusack) in "Must Love Dogs."

Simultaneously, the recently separated and lovelorn Jake Anderson, an overly romantic boat builder, is nursing his wounds at home with repeated viewings of "Doctor Zhivago." His meddling, wisecracking buddy is a lawyer.

The chemistry Cusack and Lane share in their scenes comes from Cusack alone. Lane simply doesn't have much to work with here. Cusack's character, meanwhile, is so effusive in his neediness and eloquent in his idealistic platitudes about love, he's a nonstop energy source.

ART-FLICK: A film in verse! It's daring, we admit/Without E.T.'s, explosions or Brad Pitt/we have to wonder at the point of it.

Negative Outlook

In the harrowing new film 'Yes,' the world intrudes on an affair

FILM | With "Yes," idiosyncratic and daring British filmmaker Sally Potter tells a searing love story that bares the pain and rage of the conflicts between the Middle East and the West, the demonization of the Arab world and escalating hatred of America.

Bold, vibrant and impassioned, "Yes" is the work of a high-risk film artist in command of her medium and gifted in propelling her actors to soaring performances. Potter is unafraid of letting herself get carried away.

In this instance, in two ways: First, in writing her dialogue in iambic pentameter; second, in going for an epilogue that can only be described as a Hollywood ending.

The glory of the film is the remarkable Joan Allen, whose virtuosity is well matched by that of Simon Abkarian. Allen's "She" is a cool goddess, an eminent London-based microbiologist and Belfast-born American, married to Anthony (Sam Neill), a successful politician and unfaithful husband. Anger and resentment lurk just beneath the surface of their poised public facade, but at a grand dinner She connects with a waiter (Abkarian), who will be known only as "He," and does not fight it. He turns out to be a Lebanese surgeon who fled Beirut a decade before and lives modestly as a restaurant cook.

They plunge headlong into a torrid affair, but a nasty, potentially violent clash between He and several other cooks of varying ethnicity, religion and politics thrusts He back into his Arabic identity and culture, causing him to reject She as a symbol of a superpower that looks down on the Arab world.

Allen and Abkarian have the presence, skill and commitment to take the viewer along on harrowing emotional journeys. KEVIN

McD's Seeing Green

DEALS | Ronald McDonald is getting a new sidekick: Shrek. McDonald's Corp. said Wednesday it has signed a two-year, non-exclusive deal to promote DreamWorks Animation SKG films beginning with "Shrek 3" in 2007.

McDonald's previously said it wanted to try a new approach to marketing partnerships when its exclusive 10-year deal with the Walt Disney Co. expires next year.

... And so an unholy alliance among clown, ogre and power elite was born.

The relationship between the companies has been marked by notable successes, including "101 Dalmatians" and "Finding Nemo." But there were also mutual flops such as "Atlantis: The Lost Empire" and "Treasure Planet."

The agreement will go beyond typical marketing efforts to include pairing pitchman Ronald McDonald with DreamWorks characters in ads. It will be the first time the company's "chief happiness officer" has shared the spotlight with non-McDonald's characters. GARY GENTILE (AP)

FRIDAY

Everybody stand up: Hip-hop's favorite satirist, LUDACRIS aka Luda, is stomping through Dream tonight, and those caught sitting may be trampled. Don't say we didn't warn you.

If you're feeling nostalgic for a little "Ice, Ice Baby," let it go. VANILLA ICE certainly has. Now he's all about the skate-punk, when he isn't all about the smoked-out funk or the gangsta rap or the ... yeah, well, he's at Jaxx tonight.

On a strict diet of electronica? Head to the 9:30 Club and smell what Eighteenth Street Lounge's own THIEVERY CORPORATION is cooking. There'll be peace, love, dub, bossa nova and deep house for all.

D.C. melodic pop stars, we hardly knew you: THE SHAKEDOWNS shake it down for the last time at the Black Cat with fellow party-starters the Safes and — giggle — the Twats.

Just wanna dance, for crying out loud? Get thee heinie free at DC9's LIBERATION DANCE PARTY, a mix of music and music videos (just in case one needs to be reminded how to one-two-step), or join the First Ladies DJ Collective at Black Cat's GIRL FRIDAY dance party. It's only five bucks and you'll love the ease with which these kit-tens scratch. And last but certainly most lively, get out your white T-shirt and slip-'n'-slide at Nation's FOAM PARTY.

SATURDAY

Since there's nothing people like more than anything free, begin your Saturday at the 15TH ANNUAL STONE SOUL PICNIC on the grounds of RFK Stadium. There will be many vendors but there's no purchase necessary to hear the sounds of Chuck Brown, Trouble Funk, Morris Day & the Time, gospel veteran Dr. Charles Hayes, neo-soul's Dwele and R&B diva Toni Braxton.

A neo-hippie jam band playing a loose and rootsy brand of Southern rock sounds like nothing to WIDESPREAD PANIC about; rock on with them at Nissan Pavilion.

THE GIBSON BROTHERS may not have been around nearly as long as THE COUNTRY GENTLEMEN — those latter fellows formed up a band here in D.C. on July 4, 1957 — but they are gonna prove they're just as progressive as their predecessors on the bluegrass scene when both bands appear tonight at the Birchmere Music Hall.

'Pon de river and give us a run to Crossroads where reggae's lover-boy WAYNE WONDER will wow the ladies and there'll be "No Letting Go."

And because we thought nothing could make a party better than a real live gay adult star doing a guest appearance, we are proud to announce the in-the-flesh cameo of Matthew Rush, star of "Defined" and "Taking Flight," at Nation's weekly VELVET NATION. Maybe he'll even sign a few unmentationables.

SUNDAY

After Wayne Wonder gets you all warmed up Crossroads, completes the workout with the "King of Lovers' Rock" MAXI PRIEST and Jamaican crossover success Third World.

If the stories we hear are true, then Daedalus will be host to a hot happening this late-night. Local lady AMERIE and B-more's own MARIO will be giving those who couldn't get tickets to the Destiny's Child concert (they're both on the bill as opening acts) a glimpse of what they could have seen — minus the whole "Cater to U" thing, of course. Sorry.

Movies Now Playing

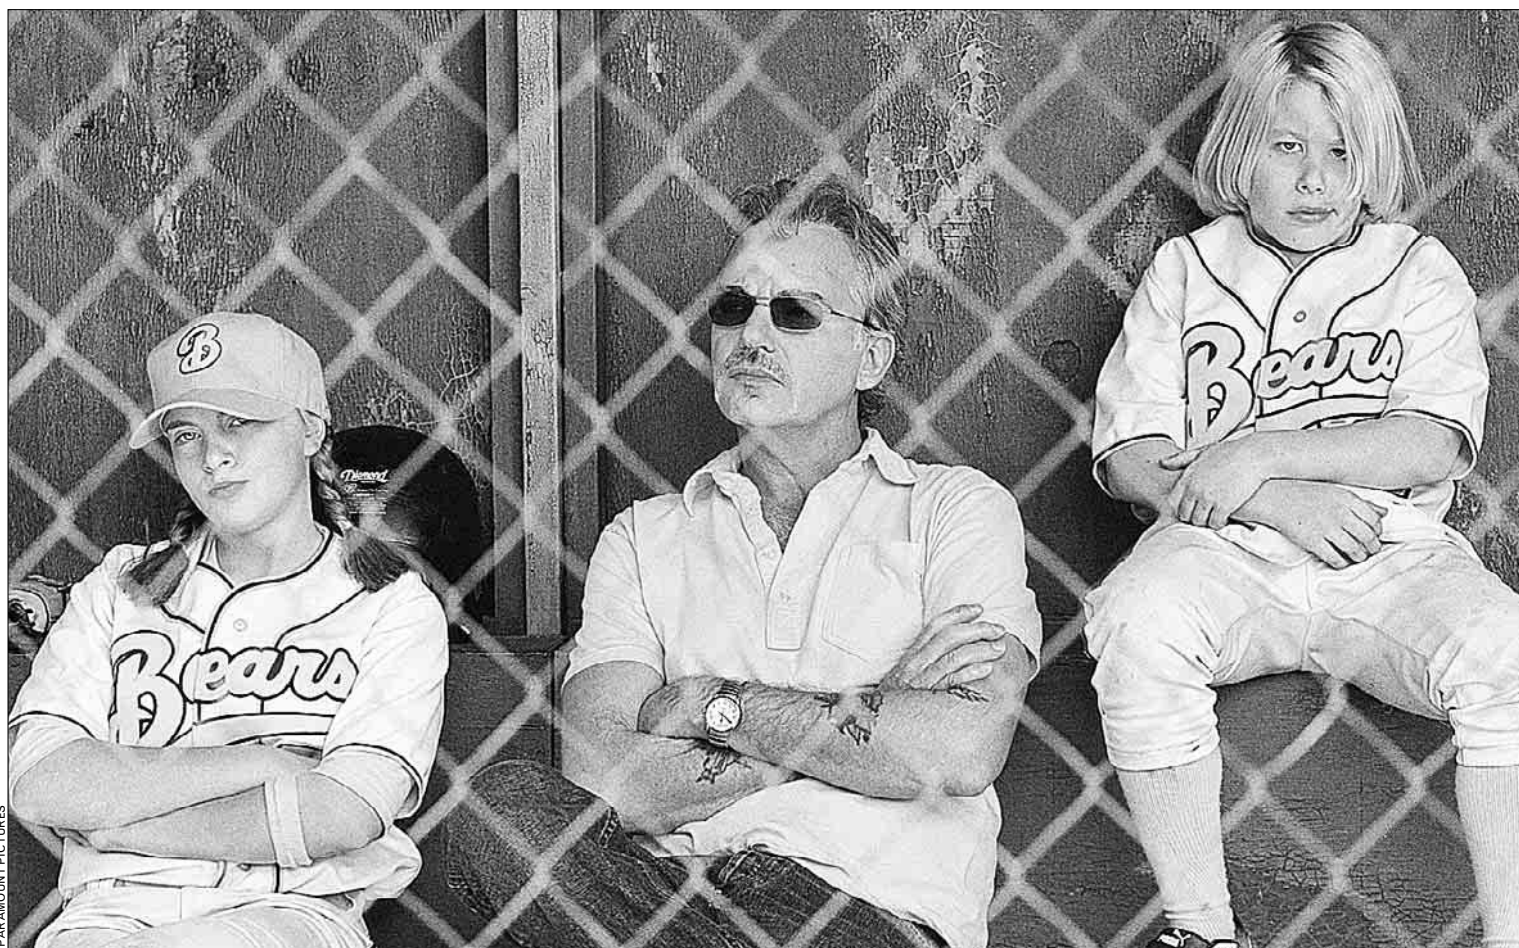

APRES VOUS (R, 110 minutes) In this French romantic comedy, Daniel Auteuil plays sweet, hapless Antoine, a headwaiter who can't say no to anyone. When he saves Louis (Jose Garcia) from hanging himself, he realizes he also has to solve the man's life problems. There isn't much to the movie — you can see where it's going from kilometers away, — but Auteuil is delightful. (DT)

BAD NEWS BEARS (PG-13, 111 minutes) Sure he's just reprising "Bad Santa," but Billy Bob Thornton's shtick never seems to get old. In this remake of the 1976 classic, he's a beer-swilling misanthrope who turns a ragtag, trash-talking gang of kiddie misfits into Little League contenders. The movie, directed by Richard Linklater, is a faithful remake of the Tatum O'Neal-Walter Matthau original, with only minor updates and changes. If truth be told, the movie is dull without Thornton. The young actors (including Sammi Kraft and Jeff Davies) aren't the most stellar thespians to swear their way through a film, and the plot is trite. But this movie's enjoyable for that hangdog coach whose slurry, sour-mouthed retorts knock 'em out of the park every time. (DT)

BATMAN BEGINS (PG-13, 140 minutes) Director Christopher Nolan and his co-writer David S. Goyer have taken the bubble gum out of those previous Batman movies and returned to the dark spirit of comic book creator Bob Kane's work. This prequel about the early days is slow moving in many respects, but it's narratively entrancing. And Christian Bale makes a credible Bruce Wayne, who undergoes rigorous training under the tutelage of mystical warrior Henri Ducard (Liam Neeson). (DT)

THE BEAT THAT MY HEART SKIPPED (Unrated, 107 minutes) This French drama, a remake of writer-director James Toback's 1978 "Fingers," about a man torn between thug life and his love of the piano, plays like a piece of mediocre music, gorgeously rendered. Romain Duris is excellent as Thomas Seyr, a punk who dreams of resurrecting the shot he once had at being a concert pianist like his mother, but which he abandoned 10 years ago to follow in his disreputable father's footsteps. He almost makes you care about which side of Thomas's personality will win out. (MO)

THE BEST OF YOUTH (R, 366 minutes, in two parts) Alessio Boni and Luigi Lo

THERE'S NO SULKING IN BASEBALL: In the Richard Linklater remake of the 1976 comedy, "Bad News Bears" coach Billy Bob Thornton has the proper jaundiced appeal.

Cascio convincingly play brothers whose relationship changes over the course of several decades in this six-hour-long, two-part Italian epic that is both domestic drama and commentary on Italy's history in the second half of the 20th century. The events that play out on the world stage underscore his themes of reconciliation and healing between members of the same family. (MO)

BEWITCHED (PG-13, 105 minutes) Nicole Kidman is engaging as a sweet-natured but very real witch who finds herself playing a fake one in a TV re-do of the classic TV series "Bewitched." But Kidman's power smile is just one of very few flickers in a dismal movie. The other flickers come from Kidman's co-star, Will Ferrell, who turns on the physical comedy as much as he can. But he's working it too hard. (DT)

CATERINA IN THE BIG CITY (Unrated, 106 minutes) High-school movies about not fitting in are a dime a dozen, but this Italian offering from filmmaker Paolo Virzi gets something right that's not so easy to do. That's because it knows the real question is whether the title character (Alice Tegli), a girl from the sticks adjusting to life in Rome, will figure out that life isn't a label. "Who are you really?" Caterina keeps getting asked. Virzi's delightfully open-ended film would rephrase that as, "Who are you becoming?" (MO)

CHARLIE AND THE CHOCOLATE FACTORY (PG, 115 minutes) Johnny Depp's odd-ball eccentricity as Willy Wonka is an unsettling amalgam of Michael Jackson, Edward Scissorhands and Lisa Kudrow's Phoebe from "Friends." But there are other watchable delights: Wonka's factory is a wonderland of chocolate lakes and candy-grass banks. There are some hilarious routines performed by the diminutive Oompa Loompas. And Freddie Highmore is a charmer as Charlie, the poor kid who wins a ticket to tour Wonka's factory. (DT)

CRASH (R, 100 minutes) The aftermath of Rodney King and 9/11 seems to sear the nostrils of every Los Angeleno in Paul Haggis' white-knuckle hatefest among characters of almost every ideological, cultural or religious stripe. If "Crash" only showed the dark side of humanity, it would barely be worth bothering. But the movie is also about the best in people. As soon as we think we have some character's number he or she turns around and does something quite astonishing. (DT)

DARK WATER (PG-13, 102 minutes) Director Walter Salles brings an almost unheard-of class and style to this pretty creepy (and pretty silly) remake of a Japanesethriller about a woman (Jennifer Connelly) and her young daughter (Ariel Gade) who have moved into an apartment plagued by plumbing problems. "Dark Water" also plays like a prosaic how-to (or rather how-not-to) film on dealing with incompetent maintenance men, shifty building supers and two-faced rental agents. Now that's scary. (MO)

THE DEVIL'S REJECTS (R, 101 minutes) Meet the Firefly family, a southern fried version of Charles Manson's murderous clan that includes Mother Firefly (Leslie Easterbrook), Otis Firefly (Bill Moseley) and his sister Baby (Sheri Moon Zombie). They kill innocents with giddy abandon as they trade endless, graphic obscenities. Rob Zombie's follow-up to the gruesome "House of 1,000 Corpses" is a return to the cold-slab murderousness of "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre" and the anything-goes mayhem of midnight movies. For the right audience, this movie is the butt-kicking, dirt-talking, blood-spurting equivalent of beautiful music. Speaking of which, the soundtrack is a stomping kick of its own. (DT)

FANTASTIC FOUR (PG-13, 105 minutes) This movie version of the comic book series, which stars Jessica Alba (as Susan Storm), Michael Chiklis (the Thing) and others, feels like a rote adaptation. We go through the opening history and learn how four astronaut-scientists were caught in a wave of radioactivity and became the Fantastic Four team of superfreaks. But the movie lacks oomph.

Despite some nice moments of computer-generated imagery, this "Four" ain't so "Fantastic." And the less said about the dialogue, the better. (DT)

HAPPY ENDINGS (R, 130 minutes) — Lisa Kudrow reunites with Don Roos, her director in "The Opposite of Sex," for another darkly comic look at the search for love and the meaning of family. Less jaundiced than "Sex," this film is rich in humor and Byzantine in plot, a fact that is somewhat mitigated by Roos' use of silent-movie-style titles that help viewers navigate the vast web of interconnectedness linking one character to another. "It's a sick, sick bond," says one character to another, referring to the love of a mother for her child. The same could be said of the connection between sister and brother, father and son, lovers and spouses in this twisted, but kind of sweet, take on human bondage. (MO)

HEIGHTS (R, 93 minutes) If there's anything good to be said about this film, it's Glenn Close's strutting, booming performance as Diana, a veteran actress who lords it over her stage and acting students, while she casts a controlling, lascivious eye over a promising new actor (Jesse Bradford). Unfortunately, the others, though played by estimable performers, including Elizabeth Banks, James Marsden and Matt Davis, feel like cardboard-cutout New Yorkers. The movie trades on a secondhand conceit about New York City as the storied citadel of countless artistic dreams. (DT)

THE FAMILY THAT SLAYS TOGETHER: Rob Zombie has an affection for midnight movies, and his own versions, such as "The Devil's Rejects," have a pungent kick.

HERBIE: FULLY LOADED (G, 101 minutes) A reconditioned lemon by any other name is still a lemon, and this sequel to the "Love Bug" movies of the 1960s and 1970s, about a magical VW Beetle that thinks it's a race car, is still a clunker under the hood. That's even despite the souped-up star power of Lindsay Lohan, who brings a modicum of pick-up, but not much mileage, to the story about a young woman who rescues a beat-up car from the junkyard. (MO)

HOWL'S MOVING CASTLE (PG, 110 minutes) Fans of Japanimation icon Hayao Miyazaki ("Spirited Away") are more likely to be wowed by his feature-length, "Yu-Gi-Oh!"-flavored cartoon than are fans of British author Diana Wynne Jones' dark and oh-so-tweedy book, on which it is ostensibly based. visual charms, the movie bears no more relation to the novel than gummy bears do to grizzlies. (MO)

HUSTLE & FLOW (R, 114 minutes) In Craig Brewer's charming, gritty hip-hop fairy-tale, DJay (Terrence Howard) is a Memphis pimp heading nowhere slow, who dreams of making the music big time. He's always had a way with rhymes and he has an idea for a song. With the help of an old buddy and sound engineer (Anthony Anderson), and a scrawny white musician (DJ Qualls), DJay makes his new song, "Whup That Trick," take foot-stomping shape. He even gets his hookers, bottle-blond Nola (Taryn Manning) and Shug (Taraji P. Henson), involved and liberates them in the process. Writer-director Brewer doesn't go light on the obscenity, which is part and parcel of the language of the characters. But his story is so affecting, it threatens to make crossover audiences sing out: "You know, it's hard out here for a pimp." (DT)

THE ISLAND (PG-13, 127 minutes) Ewan McGregor and Scarlett Johansson, buffed and dressed in sparkling white, play harvested beings, or replicants — to borrow a term from "Blade Runner," which Michael Bay's movie has ransacked. McGregor is a cloned human called Lincoln Six Echo, and Johansson, named Jordan Two Delta, is also a copy of someone else. When they realize they are spare parts for their original molds, they make a run for it. Cue the helicopters and a paramilitary troubleshooter named

THIS WHEEL'S ON FIRE: In "Murderball," teams of tough, tattooed guys go up against each other in a violent, rugby-like game. Oh, and they're all in wheelchairs.

Albert Laurent (Djimon Hounsou) who gives chase. As pretty, very human stars, McGregor and Johansson put the main sizzle into "The Island," since we've seen this plot-line, and this Brave New World, in better sci-fi films. Thanks to their performances, it's still fun to watch. (DT)

MARCH OF THE PENGUINS (G, 80 minutes) In this charmfest of a movie, narrator Morgan Freeman tells us about the habits and tremendous resilience of the emperor penguins, whose procreation quest takes them on an incredible journey on the frozen continent, where on a good day, the temperature is 58 degrees below zero. We're talking journeys of about 70 miles to the most frigid chunk of land on Earth. The film is full of wonderful moments and spectacles, including thousands of penguins huddled en masse, nursing their eggs. The wind moans and peppers them with snow. But they hold on to those eggs, which would crack and kill the baby inside if they touch the ground. (DT)

ME AND YOU AND EVERYONE WE KNOW (R, 9 minutes) Miranda July's brilliant, quirky film is far too complex and precious to render in one short paragraph. But it hums with compassion for its outlandish, lonely but always sweet characters. Everyone operates on eccentric impulse rather than formulaic predictability. (DT)

MR. & MRS. SMITH (PG-13, 112 minutes) Husband-and-wife hit men (Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie) are hired to kill each other as bullets and romantic sparks fly. Nevertheless, Pitt and Jolie's monumental charisma, coupled with director Doug Liman's stylishly jaundiced staging, makes this allegory of modern love and marriage a summer diversion that's fast-paced, fun and sexy. It's a grown-up popcorn movie. (MO) umentary featuring muscular dudes in wheelchairs ever made. It's also a powerful movie by any standard. Actually, the sport, played on basketball courts, is "quad rugby." Four players per team, most of whom suffered injuries to the spine or neck, roll around in "Road Warrior"-style chariots and throw a ball around. We watch likable Mark Zupan and his national teammates take on the world's best, including Canada — coached by arch rival Joe Soares, who was so miffed at being cut from the American team, the forty-something behemoth became the Canadian coach. Though the movie follows the American-Canadian rivalry in big clashes at the 2002 World Championship in Sweden and the 2004 Paralympics in Athens, "Murderball" isn't just about sports. It's an emotional visit with some determined young men (and one middle-aged guy in major denial) who refuse to accept limitations in every aspect of their lives. (DT) MY SUMMER OF LOVE (R, 81 minutes) Two young women (Emily Blunt and Nathalie Press) meet by chance in the Yorkshire countryside and instantly understand they are meant for each other. Tamsin

GIANT SUCKING SOUND: In "The Island," Scarlett Johansson surveys the ruins of her indie cred while Ewan McGregor glares in astonishment at his agent's betrayal.

DREAMWORKS

(Blunt) is a rich, horse-riding bon vivant without a care in the world. Mona (Press) is a working-class girl who lives over, and runs, a local pub. But things get ugly, and whether or not director Pawel Pawlikowski's dark, almost biblical finale brings things to a satisfying conclusion is a matter for debate. For all its melodramatic excesses, "My Summer" remains highly watchable for atmosphere and performances. (DT) MYSTERIOUS SKIN (Unrated, 99 minutes) Gregg Araki's psychodrama is a helter-skelter ride of the soul, an unblinking, white-knuckle crash landing into the mushy mysteries of the subconscious. It makes an ingenious, dark metaphor out of extraterrestrial visitation and is not for the faint-hearted, the squeamish or the inflexibly decent. The story has two characters: 18-year-old Brian (Brady Corbet), who believes he may have been the victim of an alien encounter, and Neil (Joseph Gordon-Levitt), a gay hustler who had formative sexual experiences as a child. Why these two men's histories are in the same drama becomes apparent later. But until that time, we watch — fascinated, appalled and powerfully moved. (DT)

REBOUND (PG, 97 minutes) Just like the

character played by star Martin Lawrence here — a cocky, indolent college basketball star trying to rehabilitate his bad-boy image by coaching a bunch of inept 13-year-olds at his former junior high school — this formulaic underdog sports comedy is lazy and arrogant. It feels as tired as the comedian looks. (MO)

SAVING FACE (R, 97 minutes) Ambitious doctor Wilhelmina Pang (Michelle Krusiec) and dancer Vivian Shing (Lynn Chen) meet cute but awkward in writer-director Alice Wu's affecting tale of overcoming love's obstacles. Set in the Chinese immigrant community of Flushing, Queens, where Wil, as she's known, faces quiet parental disapproval for her lesbianism — even as her divorced mother (Joan Chen) is ostracized for getting pregnant by a mystery man — "Saving Face" isn't really about saving face at all. At heart, this romantic comedy is about showing face, about being who you really are. (MO)

STAR WARS: EPISODE III — REVENGE OF THE SITH (PG-13, 140 minutes) In this final installment of the "Star Wars" mega-ology, we learn about the circumstances that led to the creation of Darth Vader. But this most potentially compelling episode of all is marred by the disappointingly ordinary Hayden Christiansen, whose evolution from Anakin Skywalker to the baddest heavy-breathing villain in sci-fi popular culture amounts to a sort of tizzy fit. (DT)

WAR OF THE WORLDS (PG-12, 118) Starring Tom Cruise as a divorced father trying to protect his children (Dakota Fanning and Justin Chatwin) from annihilation by ruthless visitors from outer space, this "War of the Worlds" spends a considerable amount of time exploring the interior life of one man, but not at the expense of the film's profound, sustained thrills. It's a rip-roaring popcorn flick with a heart. (MO)

WEDDING CRASHERS (R, 119 minutes) Jeremy (Vince Vaughn) and John (Owen Wilson) are scoundrels who crash weddings so they can score with women, in this often-funny caper. But when they attend a big-time Washington wedding party for the daughter of Secretary of the Treasury William Cleary (Christopher Walken), things change. John falls for Claire (Rachel McAdams), one of the secretary's daughters. And Jeremy gets in over his head with another Cleary daughter, Gloria (Isla Fisher). Vaughn is definitely the best man in this wedding comedy. He's a cad and a half who can motor-mouth like a machine gun. (DT)

The Lifetime special 'Beach Girls' takes a gloomy summer trip

MALE WEEPIE | Rob Lowe returns to episodic television in the six-part series "Beach Girls" (Sun., 8 p.m., Lifetime), and boy, is he bummed. No, not about his decision to quit "The West Wing"; he's playing Jack Kilvert, a successful Boston lawyer and widower father of 16-year-old daughter Nell (Chelsea Hobbs).

A year after his wife's death, Jack returns to the posh beach town of Hubbard's Point, where in the fateful summer of 1985, his late wife, Emma, was part of a popular circle known as the Beach Girls that also included Jack's sister Maddie (Katharine Julia Ormond and Rob Lowe wonder if the bored viewers are biting this year.

Ashby) and Stevie (Julia Ormond). Of the Beach Girls, only Stevie has remained on the point, where she has gone through three marriages and become a famous novelist and a bit of a hermit. For reasons unclear (but that are certain to emerge, gradually and painfully) Jack has cut off ties to his wife's former friends.

In fact, Jack has cut off ties with almost everything, and most notably, with his razor blade. He mopes around the beach house half-shaven when not spooning joylessly with his new girlfriend, who doesn't look much older than Jack's daughter. Can you blame Nell for hating her?

Viewers looking for a fluffy escape to sun, sand, skin and scandal are barking up the wrong sand dune here. Like Jack himself, "Beach Girls" seems moody, depressive and not a little pretentious. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Television

FOCUS ON THE FAMILY: "Commander in Chief" creator Rob Lurie and star (and reluctant president) Geena Davis insist that the upcoming ABC drama is as much about the residence as the Oval Office — what Lurie called "East Wing stuff."

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

IOWA MIGHT HAVE CRIME, TOO WANTED (Sun., 10 p.m., TNT) Yet another hyper-violent police drama set in L.A. Gary Cole plays the head of a super-secret squad dedicated to tracking and busting the top 100 bad-guys in the City of Angels. You'll swear you've seen it before, and won't miss it when it's gone.

LIFE ON 'MARS'
VERONICA MARS (Fri., 8 & 9 p.m., CBS) isn't even on CBS; it's a UPN drama. Viacom thinks exposure on the more established network will draw fans to the drama about a teenage detective in a dark town of secrets and lies. Tonight, CBS airs the pilot and second episode.

SUGAR-FROSTED HEALTH FOOD Did Tony the Tiger and the Breakfast of Champions begin as part of a radical food movement? CEREAL: HISTORY IN A BOWL (Sun., 10 p.m., History) looks at the evolution of the breakfast cereal from the health sanitariums of 19th-century Battle Creek, Mich., to today's billion-dollar industry.

THEY CAN'T GET 'ARRESTED'
Fox offers fans four chances to see why ARRESTED DEVELOPMENT was nominated

BREAKFAST RUSH: What began as spa food ended up a kids' morning treat.

for the Emmy for Best Comedy. On four consecutive episodes (Fox), the police seize the wrong Bluth (8 p.m.), Gob lets his no-show job go to his figurehead (8:30 p.m.), a stairway to Mexico (9 p.m.) and George Sr. is pronounced dead (9:30 p.m.).

ONE FAMILY'S NIGHTMARE
Sometimes even the most overused journalistic clichés ring dreadfully true. DATeline (Fri., 8 p.m., NBC) looks at a story that qualifies as "every parent's worst nightmare." Thom and Deirdre Forbes are bright, sensitive people who met at the New York Daily News when he was an editor and she worked as a photographer. They live in a big house filled with books in a safe, lovely suburb. Their daughter, Carrick, was a beautiful baby and a bright child, but she recoiled from schoolwork and was quickly deemed a problem student. Her drug use probably began with adolescence and only worsened when she dropped out of high school.

Using home videos and professional camera crews, "Dateline" followed the Forbes as they try to cope with their daughter's heroin addiction and her flight to New York's drug-dealing demimonde while trying to protect their younger son from her influence.

BUSH — BAD; HUMOR — GOOD
BILL MAHER: I'M SWISS (Sat., 10 p.m., HBO) The "Politically Incorrect" comedian abandons all pretenses of even-handedness and spends much of his time trashing the current administration. "Swiss" seems dated and out of touch with recent events that might have provided ample fodder for satire.

THE TOOTH IS OUT THERE
BLOODSUCKERS (Sat., 9 p.m., Sci Fi) The hunt for vampires reaches outer space in this 2005 shocker.

BFF: "Ren & Stimpy" was part of the great '90s TV animation revolution.

ANI-MADNESS
Happy, happy, joy, joy! Original episodes of THE REN & STIMPY SHOW (Sat., 7:30 & 9:30 p.m., Nick Toons) return. The adventures of an over-caFFEINATED, asthmatic Chihuahua and a dim cat. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

SALES MANAGEMENT/Sales Supervisor

Join the management team of The Washington Post!

The Washington Post, one of the nation's premier media companies, is seeking a highly motivated sales professional to drive the success of its Consumer-to-Consumer advertising sales department. This is an opportunity to set your people management, analytical, entrepreneurial, sales coaching and training skills simultaneously into motion. The ideal candidate should have strong customer-focused, relationship building skills, an ability to see the "big picture," a career-driven attitude, a proactive approach to problem-solving and a solid track record of sales achievement. This is an ideal position for an individual who is able to innovate and implement change, has strong analytical skills and strong people management skills.

You will be responsible for:

- The day-to-day operations of the Consumer-to-Consumer Contact Center
- Managing the performance of a team of telephone sales representatives and sales associates
- Coaching and motivating the sales agents by creating a sales-oriented and customer-oriented culture within the department
- Driving the revenue performance of the department
- Proactively looking for new sales opportunities
- Proactively looking for process improvement opportunities

Three or more years of sales and/or sales management experience is necessary. An advanced degree is preferred.

The Washington Post isn't just a great newspaper: It's also a great place to work with interesting jobs, competitive benefits, a diverse workforce and a long tradition of community service. When you join The Post, you join a company of more than 3,000 employees who are proud to work here.

For confidential consideration, please fax/mail/email your resume and cover letter to:

Keeping your brain in sync with music maximizes work outs

It was the tae kwon do championship, and competitor Michael Tang needed something to help him concentrate, to calm his pumped pre-competition energy. He turned to the one thing he knew would work: music.

Strapping on his headphones and cueing up some techno-trance music, he closed his eyes and began to visualize himself going into the ring, winning the first round, then the second. "It put me into a more relaxed state of mind and helped me focus," Tang said of the 2001 match.

He kept the music in his head throughout the event. The result? He won the U.S. national title.

Athletes work hard to reach a state of internal calm, harnessing their mind power to stay intense, but not frantic. Music helps them get into that zone, offering flow, control, focus. It helps them manage the pain of stressing their bodies to levels undreamed of by most three-times-a-week joggers.

"If you have a genre of music that really gets you pumped and keeps you focused, it will distract you from negative thoughts," said sports psychologist Michelle Cleere.

How music affects athletic performance begins with the eighth nerve from the ear, which has two direct tracks: one that involves hearing, and another that goes straight to the vestibular system, that part of the cerebellum that manages balance and some motor functions. The same kinds of messages from the cerebellum that enable us to concentrate also encourage maximum performance. So when the right kind of music hits that eighth nerve, all sorts of good messages get sent to the cerebellum.

Humans are hard-wired to process music, on a motor level and an emotional one, said Mark Bodner, director of research for the MIND Institute, a nonprofit brain research and education facility in Costa Mesa, Calif. "Certain music has certain structures that resonate with certain networks we're born with," he said. When those networks overlap with others, it can affect complex motor sequences such as athletic activities.

Music can trigger various emotional responses too, which may explain why athletes seek out certain types of music. "Even if you're listening to something passively, it will elicit a very specific response," Bodner said. "It truly is tapping into something very innate."

Although each physical part of the brain is connected to particular functions, the brain is also a masterpiece of interconnected systems, and brain waves circulate throughout. Delta waves, for example, are associated with deep sleep, and a drowsy feeling means that theta waves dominate.

When adults are awake and alert, but anxious and perhaps too focused, fast beta waves are in action.

But in the state of flow, of being in the zone, of being totally relaxed but highly focused, alpha waves organize the brain.

Visualization, deep breathing and listening to music are all techniques used to bolster alpha waves. Athletes in an alpha wave state are charged up, but not so much that performance is marred or that exhaustion hits long before crossing the finish line.

Music can be a continuous stimulus to get the alpha waves rolling, helping the athlete (and the week-and too tightly wound. "I know consciously the feeling I'm trying to get, the state of mind I'm trying to achieve," the 31-year-old from Massachusetts said.

One study, done two years ago at Acadia University in Nova Scotia, found that women who listened to music ran a minute or two longer than those who didn't. They also adjusted their strides to run more efficiently, and had lower perceived exertion.

Some research suggests that music tempo is also a factor in the relationship between music and exercise.

In one study, up-tempo music, more than slower music or no music at all, promoted positive moods during exercise.

Another study of Russian weightlifters proposed that the speed of an exercise should be matched to the beat for maximum effect.

Although most people who exercise to music might not give copious thought to their playlists, for pro and elite athletes, the undertaking is more serious. How much music they listen to, and when and where they listen to it, can have good and

Shuttle Woes

DR. ROGER LAUNIUS, chair of the Division of Space History at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, was online Thursday to discuss NASA's decision to ground its shuttle fleet. | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Are you sure the Discovery space shuttle will come back to Earth? How can you ensure the crew's safety?

Nothing is 100 percent guaranteed. And we don't know yet the extent of any damage that might have taken place with the orbiter. The preliminary analysis suggests that there was almost no damage to the vehicle. There will be additional pictures and video and those will be analyzed in detail and only then will we have any sense of whether or not Discovery will be able to come home safely. I'm quite optimistic that this crew will return safely.

I heard that NASA replaced the foam insulation several missions before the Columbia with more environmentally friendly foam that is now causing the problems. Is this true?

There have been several changes to the chemical ingredients of the foam over the years. There's no particular reason that the latest of those changes in any way caused or contributed to the insulation debris problem. Over the years, whenever they've changed the formula for the foam they have sought to make it less toxic, more environmentally friendly, easier to handle, easier to apply, more resilient and more effective in terms of insulating the spacecraft.

I have a hard time grasping how foam can damage tiles designed to withstand extreme temperatures and speed in flight. How heavy is this foam and at what kind of speed is it hitting the shuttle during lift-off?

The foam in itself is not particularly heavy, but the piece that hit Columbia in 2003 and broke a hole in the reinforced-carbon/carbon leading edge did so at more than 500 miles per hour. Even a small piece of debris at that speed will do damage. The other thing to remember about the shuttle tiles is that they are a form of ceramic. They're quite tough and certainly they're heat resistant, but if you struck one with a hammer you could break it.

Media Dropped Ball on Rove

IN RESPONSE TO the reader who asked where all the news concerning Karl Rove had disappeared to (July 27, Letters), I would answer: just where Republicans and the Bush administration hoped it would, into the ether. All they had to do was play rope-a-dope with the media for about a week until the president announced his Supreme Court nominee. It'd be nice if our news media had the nerve to focus on the issue. But unfortunately an

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tap into your leadership qualities. There are many scattered individuals in your orbit; you can surely harness their energies.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try not to be too fastidious; it's sure to get in your way. Lie back and don't let yourself get too immersed in scattered, trivial details.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may have a tendency to be pensive and moody. It is all right to be quiet and thoughtful, but guard against sinking into a funk.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Let go of that grudge you've been holding close for a while. Wipe the slate clean and peace of mind will surely be the result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You will be truly inspired. The good ideas and the fresh outlook will come to you at a steadily increasing rate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't waste time. Opportunities are rushing by and you must be willing to reach out and grab them as they pass.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You have been busy lately with a variety of tasks and interests. Find time to give some attention to a special friend who feels neglected.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Embrace the earthy side of yourself. You'll have time to take a long walk, engage in sports or tend to outdoor chores around the home.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There is almost nothing you won't be willing to tackle. Remember this as you face an imposing hurdle that lies before you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Remember that while your brain is calculating things at light speed, you must slow down and make decisions deliberately and with care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Make time for yourself. It is easy to forget how important it is to tend to your own needs and it will positively affect other endeavors.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is a good day to evaluate your own standing by looking openly and honestly at those around you. Take a step back; be more objective.

Not Your Normal 'Cheesecake'

When Joan Leslie won a contract at Warner Bros. at age 15, she was instructed to report to the swimming pool at the Lakeside Country Club two blocks from the studio. Her duty: to pose for photographs in bathing suit and shorts.

This was her introduction to cheesecake, also known as leg art, a Hollywood ritual from the 1930s into the 1960s. Studios issued photos of curvy starlets — and stars — to the nation's newspapers and magazines, and they were printed widely.

The collapse of the studio system — and the women's movement — took a big bite out of cheesecake. Actors, publicists and photographers were dropped from studio contract lists.

A new generation of actresses considered posing in bathing suits demeaning, and feminists agreed.

Newspapers and magazines scorned such stunts as old-fashioned, corny and blatantly promotional. Men's magazines preferred their centerfolds sans bathing suits.

The beginning of cheesecake can be traced to the silent era in which attractive young women in high-necked woolen bathing suits were photographed cavorting on California beaches. They were called the Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties and they included future stars such as Carole Lombard and Phyllis Haver.

History does not record why the popular bathing suit photos acquired the name of the high-calorie dessert. Candid guess: because both were delectable.

Despite the 1930s Depression — or perhaps because of it, beleaguered citizens sought escape from their travails with cheap entertainment. And Hollywood flourished.

All the majors embraced cheesecake as a means of publicizing their product and stars.

A remarkable 2003 book, "Sunkissed" by Joshua James Curtis, reproduced hundreds of photos showing actresses in bathing suits or other scanty attire.

DESSERT: Marilyn Monroe, always an attention-grabber, loved her cheesecake.

World War II brought the heyday of cheesecake.

Homesick GIs yearned for photos of beauties in scanty attire to pin up beside their bunks, and the studios supplied millions of "pinups."

The three most famous photos: Rita Hayworth kneeling on a bed in a negligee; Betty Grable in a bathing suit, smiling invitingly over her shoulder; Jane Russell nestling against a haystack, blouse cut low.

Cheesecake continued during the postwar years and was joined by another phenomenon: beefcake.

Studios discovered that revealing photos of their male stars helped build their popularity, especially with teenage girls. Well-built actors such as Rock Hudson, Victor Mature and Tony Curtis were photographed in bathing trunks playing volleyball at the beach.

In the '50s, cheesecake got a startling infusion from Marilyn Monroe's electric presence.

She was the subject of two historic photographs: the nude pose against red velvet and the shot of her skirt billowing up as she and Tom Ewell stood over a New York sidewalk vent for a scene in "The Seven Year Itch." BOB THOMAS (AP)

Don't Mean to Bug Ya

There's nothing like a swarm of mosquitoes to ruin your poolside look. BUG BAN wristbands — plastic bracelets with citronella, geranium and lemongrass essential oils — keep the bites away ($2.29 each at bugban.com). Almost odorless (they have a light citronella scent) and totally non-toxic, they're safe for all ages. They're also quite the sporty accessory: Miami's Delano Hotel hands them out to guests, and Mercedes Benz ordered thousands to hand out at the 2005 US Open this August. (THE DAILY)

Give Me a Hand

The HANDY STRAP STAPLER ($10, Staples), which sports a removable base, was invented by a teacher to ease vertical stapling to walls and bulletin boards. While we enjoyed the violent thrill of slamming our stapler-hand against walls, we're not the target audience. So we asked Katya Fedorov, a teacher at Edison High School in Fairfax, to try it out. She found the strap "so tight it slowly cuts off circulation" and wasn't pleased with the capacity — it only holds half a strip of staples, requiring frequent refills. Her recommendation: "Keep the run-of-the-mill desktop stapler and save time by assigning detention to one of the students. Make them staple everything to the board." (EXPRESS)

EDUCATION

We Were Looking Forward To Calling Him 'Dr. Wow'

Fresh out of high school, 18-year-old rap star BOW WOW isn't ready for college just yet, despite his mother's desire to see him go. "Hey, I never promised her — but uh, yeah, college, honestly, is really not on my mind right now," said Bow Wow, who is touring to support his fourth album, "Wanted." "If I do it, it'll be later on. If I had to do it, I'd major in business," Bow Wow said. (AP)

Maybe he'll get a post office, too.

And so it was when ROBIN WILLIAMS and his wife, Marsha, offered to donate $80,000 to fix a retaining wall and median strip near their home. TV personality BROOKE BURKE and her husband, Garth Fisher, have called it quits. The co-host of CBS's "Rock Star: INXS" and Fisher announced their separation in a statement issued to People magazine Wednesday. The two have been married since 2001 and have two children. "We are saddened to announce that we have mutually decided to separate after seven years together," the statement read. "We have a great deal of respect for one another and remain committed to raising our two children together." (AP)

Eminem May Not Want to Kiss and Make Up Quite Yet

MOBY says he has newfound respect for EMINEM — who once mocked him in a song — because the rapper criticized President Bush and the war in Iraq on his last album. "I found myself respecting him for doing that," Moby told reporters during a promotional stop in Hong Kong for his latest album, "Hotel." (AP)

But the Stamps Will Probably Still Cost 37 Cents

On August 24 — what would have been RAY CHARLES's 75th birthday — Los Angeles officials will rename a post office in honor of the soul legend. The Ray Charles Post Office Building is near the recording studio where Charles, who died last June at 73, recorded most of his albums. "He was a man of the people, so this is a wonderful tribute," his longtime manager Joe Adams said. (AP)

The Suburbs Are Calling

Beyond-the-Beltway condos offer swanky pads for less money

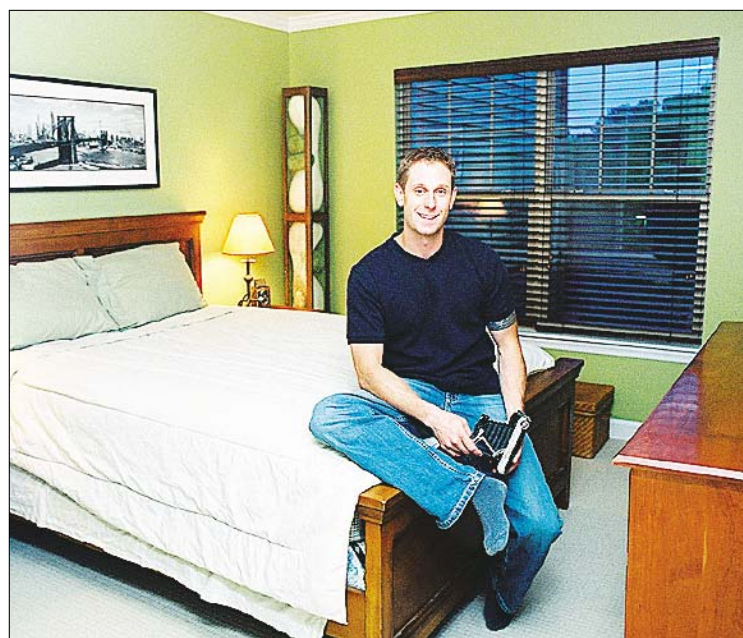

A condo in the suburbs can mean many things to the dedicated citydweller. It can mean a longer commute. It can mean sacrificing easy access to D.C.'s diverse nightlife and culture, or perhaps cold, impersonal high-rises. It can mean a wholesale rejection of all that is urban and good.

But moving beyond the Beltway can also mean a comparably vast space for far less money than a smaller, older unit in Penn Quarter, Old Town or Bethesda. With the housing market still hot, more buyers are turning — perhaps reluctantly, perhaps enthusiastically — to the suburbs. And they're finding that, rather than selling out, moving to the 'burbs can mean trading up.

Sometimes way up. Developers are responding to consumer demand for not just more space for less money, but for overall bang for the buck, resulting in swanky designs and amenities that would cost thousands more in the city or a close-in suburb.

"Prices are generally lower in the suburbs for the same type of property," said David Hawkins, a managing broker with McEneaney Associates, a firm specializing in Northern Virginia properties. "Builders pay less for land and can pass some of the savings along to consumers of new construction." And newer construction tends to incorporate trendier designs and floor plans, such as "open" layouts with lots of windows.

Demand for these condos is also attracting retailers and service businesses to larger suburban communities, said Hawkins. "Where outlying suburbs once lacked some necessary conveniences, shopping centers, large retailers, and service [businesses] are congregating near newer, larger suburban communities," he said.

But fresh designs and more Bed, Bath & Beyonds aren't the only ways developers are accommodating cityfolk. Pete Blondin, an agent with Herndon-based firm ERA Teachers and operator of reston-condos.com, said the poor market performance of apartment rentals and high demand for condo ownership in the District and surrounding areas has caused some developers to convert older apartment buildings into condominiums.

"This push is coming from several different groups of buyers — retirees who are downsizing are attracted to the increasing number of places offering elevators. They also like the convenience of not having to take care of a yard or a driveway," he said. "Young professionals and recently married couples are eager to invest their money in a condo rather than keep renting."

A converted unit in the 'burbs can be an even better deal than a brand-new one. Stephen Mahlstedt recently purchased a two-bedroom condo in the Parc Reston, a renovated garden-style condo community that for 20-plus years was part of an apartment complex. He said he got a great deal, paying in the low $300s after looking at other units in the same area of similar size (in newer, high- and mid-rise buildings) for nearly twice that amount.

He was drawn to the area in part because of the shops, bars and restaurants of Reston Town Center. So are others, which is one reason prices are rising. "D.C. is obviously expensive, but places out here — especially the high-rises or even the mid-rises — are getting pretty pricey," said Mahlstedt, 32, and restaurants.

Going Suburban

As demand for suburban space increases, the lines between D.C. and the 'burbs seem to be blurring.

"Even within counties, you have urban condos and suburban condos," said Dennis Melby of Long & Foster's Bethesda Gateway office. "For example, in Montgomery County, Bethesda is as urban as it gets, and Germantown still has farms and cow pastures. The difference is that farther-out condos are greener and less costly." Melby said he recently sold a 500-square-foot condo in Chevy Chase for $250,000 and a 950-square-foot condo in Germantown for $150,000, "both in the same week, both buildings the same age."

Suburban settings are also attracting second-home buyers, said Pam O'Connor, CEO and president of RELO/Leading Real Estate Companies of the World, a nationwide network of leading independent residential real estate firms.

"We have noticed an increase in dual-career couples purchasing condos as second homes. We see it more with couples who work further apart than, for example, D.C. and Baltimore," said O'Connor. Emptynesters, for instance, or couples with one retired spouse and one working spouse, might want to own a second spot in the suburbs.

Far from being a second-choice location, the suburbs appeal to some buyers "in many of the same ways single-family suburban homes do," said O'Connor. "Of course each community is different, but suburban communities often offer relatively lower prices, better schools, more recreational amenities, and a real or perceived safer environment in comparison to urban counterparts."

Many Realtors said new construction was at the top of the list of draws for would-be suburban condo buyers. But sometimes "new"

is in the eye of the beholder, said Blondin. "It's amazing what new buyers — especially the younger ones — consider 'new' these days. They want condos that are just opening, and they're willing to wait years to get them. I've shown people complexes that were just over five years old — and I've been told that they weren't new enough."

The suburbs offer the same, and perhaps more, variety in condo styles, from lofts to high-rises to garden-style units with small yards. The idea of condos being cookie-cutter is going out the window, said Blondin; new complexes are being built that even have a variety of layouts within the same building.

The Midtown Reston Town Center, which opened for sales late this past spring and will open in late 2006, has 293 units, from one- to three-bedrooms and several varieties of penthouses. It also has more than a dozen floor plans. The nearby Savoy has more than

The idea of cookie-cutter condos is over. New complexes offer several layouts within a single building.

30 floor plans; about half of them are loft-style.

For Jennifer Stafford, a 30-year-old who teaches high school in Herndon and moved into her $300,000 two-bedroom unit in Market Street Condos a few months ago, new construction and convenience were worth a two-year wait and the distance from D.C.

"I love the location — walking to the Town Center is fantastic. I wanted something brand new, as well," she said. "The distance from D.C. is a drawback, but the distance from work makes it well worth it." (She can get to work in less than 10 minutes, she said). A car or Metro ride into D.C. — something fellow Reston resident Mahlstedt said he makes at least once a week — can take upwards of half an hour. And that's on a good day.

"The greatest drawback to the suburban unit is, of course, the commute. While the developers try to put them up by a Metro [station], they can't all be close," said Long & Foster associate Joan Habib, who is based in the District. She cited proximity to D.C. employers as a direct link to the appreciation of Washington condos.

Then again, space and amenities sometimes trump distance: "I never heard of a city condo with a golf course or a sizeable playground," said Habib. "But the biggest difference is the space available in the two locations." LAURA EWALD

Trading Up, Not Selling Out

New condominium developments are flourishing in the suburbs, where demand for roomy, lower-priced housing is drawing citydwellers. Here are some new or planned complexes.

Developers Find Fault With Flippers

Those who buy and sell new condos for profit may be shut out

For the past few years, it has been a way to make easy money: Sign a contract to buy a property when it is still nothing more than a few squiggles on a builder's plans. Then, when there are four walls and a floor, or even before, flip it to another buyer, making a profit without ever moving in or even being a landlord.

With prices and demand climbing around the Washington region, such investors could make hundreds of thousands of dollars during the two years or so that it takes to build a condominium complex, townhouse or housing development, with just a small down payment at risk.

But like much of real estate investing these days, this pre-construction buying has become a lot harder, largely because builders are trying to rein in the process.

"There is a general understanding among builders that there is a lot of hot money out there, people buying for short-term capital gain purposes only," said David Seiders, chief economist of the National Association of Home Builders. "There's definitely a concern that if there's some inkling of prices flattening, or rates going up sharply, they could get a large flow of units back onto the market."

Developers have several concerns about pre-construction speculators. For one, if the market turns down, investors are considered far more likely to walk away from a deposit than are owner-occupants. And even if they don't walk, investors who plan on selling their units after the property is built can be competition with the developer's own final sales on a project.

"When you sell a unit to an investor, it's kind of a phantom sale," said Bobby Montagne, president and chief executive of Walnut Street Development, a condo development firm in Fairfax. "You've sold that unit, it's not available anymore, but in the end, you might not have sold it."

With values rising the way they have been, two years has meant huge price appreciation. It has been hard for developers to sit back and watch investors earn millions of dollars they might have kept themselves.

"Developers don't want to feel like they're leaving dollars on the table," said Jim Abdo of District-

It's becoming harder and harder to distinguish between possible speculators and owner-occupants.

based Abdo Development, a luxury condo developer. "If absorption on a project is that intense, and it's worth so much more at the time of completion, they've let a lot of money go out the door. That's the concern I'm hearing. They want to ensure and protect themselves in a way that doesn't allow someone else to take that profit portion."

Abdo said development profits have been squeezed recently by soaring land and construction costs, which he described as a "run-away train."

He said, "Anyone who says inflation is in check is not in the construction business."

Investors can also complicate financing. Lenders often require that developers pre-sell a certain percentage of units before they can get the financing they need to build. However, particularly with condos, lenders will often put a cap on the percentage of investors in a project. If there are too many investors, it can be almost impossible for other buyers to get mortgages.

But limiting investors is a double-edged sword.

On the positive side, investor buyers definitely help create a buzz around a project because they can add significantly to the number of people interested in purchasing, especially now when there are so many of them. When hundreds of people line up the morning that unbuilt condos go up for sale, creating a buying frenzy, it's likely that a significant portion of them are investors, developers said.

"Investors are absolutely a positive for developers," Montagne said. "I think I'd have bigger problems if people didn't want to invest in my buildings than I have when they do."

So developers need investor buyers, but are also wary of them.

"On the one hand, you don't want to discourage so many people from buying that you can't meet your bank requirements," said Tom Bozzuto, chief executive of Greenbelt-based Bozzuto Group, a builder of single-family houses, townhouses and condominiums. "But on the other hand, when you're doing new construction, I'd rather not have a lot of investor sales, because if I'm fooling the bank, I'm only fooling myself." Bozzuto, like other developers, said if he could have his way, he would sell all his homes to people who planned to live in them.

Bozzuto said the problem now is that with so many investors shopping, it has become harder and harder to distinguish between speculators and owner-occupants.

"It used to be that you could limit investor buyers simply by saying it, and generally people would be straight with you,” Bozzuto said. “But now, a lot of people do lie to you. So we need to devote more energy to culling through our customers to make sure we have legitimate home buyers.”

A buyer's personal situation can also change. That means someone who really intended to live in a unit could, for instance, face a job transfer that turns him into an investor.

A recent study by the Washington-based National Association of Home Builders found that in “hot metro markets” — and the Washington area is considered one of those — investment buyers now account for 11 percent of purchasers of new single-family homes. For multi-family condominium projects, investors made up 15 percent of all buyers.

It's not clear how many of those investors plan to sell quickly; there are also many real estate investors who believe in holding property for the long-term.

The survey found that many builders in these “hot metro markets” have taken concrete steps to reduce investor sales. Among them: selling only to owner-occupants (52 percent); prohibiting renting during the first year after settlement (33 percent); not selling more than one home to buyers with the same last name (29 percent); retaining the right to buy the unit back at the same price if the owner tries to sell within the first year (28 percent).

Local investor Arthur Dubin said that he, like many others, would love to buy pre-construction, if only he could. “I've let about a half-dozen of these pre-construction deals get past me over the past few years,” he said. “Sometimes I questioned the high initial prices and then they went up $200 a square foot in two months. Or I sneezed and they were all gone. They go that fast. And now it's become really hard.”

District-based condo developer

Many builders in hot metro markets are taking steps to reduce sales to investors who might flip a unit

PN Hoffman Inc. has taken steps to limit exposure to investors. The company tries to sell 25 percent of the units in a project before construction begins, according to Steve Earl, the company's chief operating officer. The aim is to “confirm their market and their price points.” The company tries to sell the remaining 75 percent of a project during construction.

Earl said his firm requires higher down payments for investor buyers, typically 10 percent rather than 7 percent. It also requires investors to be pre-approved for financing at 2 percentage points above the current market rate, as a hedge against interest rates rising before construction is complete.

Montagne said his firm has also increased deposit amounts over the past six months, now requiring 5 percent down, and another 5 percent when the roof goes on the building.

Investor Dubin said one developer he knows is asking for 5 percent of the gross sales price if a buyer sells a home within two years of signing the purchase contract.

Bozzuto said his firm tries to limit the number of investors in a project to 15 percent of all buyers. He said Bozzuto Homes has begun putting a clause in its purchase contracts that says that Bozzuto can buy back a unit at the same sales price if a buyer attempts to sell the home prior to the second anniversary of the date of the purchase agreement. (Usually that's sometime during construction.) His company is also requiring buyers to sign a document that states they will go to closing.

“We always worry how legally enforceable any document like that is, though,” Bozzuto said. The legality of most of these restrictions has largely not yet been tested.

Besides relying on those formal barriers, developers have also developed a nose for sniffing out investors. “They're always the first in line,” said Montagne. “They always want to buy the least expensive units. You've often seen their names before on other jobs.”

However, he said, if buyers agree to all his conditions, and provide pre-approval letters and statements saying they will be owner-occupants, “You basically end up signing the contract anyway. Because really, what are you going to do?”
